Whether the ground hog possesses all the powers with which he is superstitiously credited or not, he is an animal that the Brookletites hoped to see come out of his burrow here and stay out.

On February 2nd, he came out at exactly noon—(Believe it or not!)—in this town, but saw his shadow and scampered back into his hole.

Just because he did—so says tradition—we will have six more weeks of real winter in this town. Watch your thermometers and see if Mr. Ground Hog is a fizzle.

County Council Met At Denmark

The Bulloch County Parent-Teacher Council, composed of the fifteen Parent-Teacher Associations of this county, held its first meeting of the year with the Denmark Junior High School Saturday with a large crowd present.

Mrs. W. C. Hodges, the council president, presided.

The program committee, composed of Miss Elizabeth Donovan, Miss Jane Francis and Louis Ellis, presented a most enjoyable and informative program on the theme, "Books for the Home."

After an inspirational devotion, led by Rev. N. H. Williams, of Statesboro, and after an address of welcome given by James L. Ratcliffe, of the Denmark School, the group was entertained by a lovely rhythm band from the Denmark primary pupils.

Prominent on the day's program was an address given by Mrs. Marie Garcia, instructor of children's literature at Teachers College, on "Books for the Home." Mrs. Garcia directed her suggestions as to what books to buy for young children, adolescent children, and also for adults in the home.

She had on display copies of numerous books that should be in the home libraries. Another part of the program that was thoroughly enjoyed was a short address given by Mrs. Ruby Coutu, a member of the state department of child welfare. She talked her talk on psychological problems of children and how a psychological understanding of children might rectify these seemingly maladjustments. Miss Coutu's work will be done through the child welfare council of Bulloch county.

Before the close of the program Dr. McTye, the county health officer, was introduced. Dr. McTye announced that he would visit each school in the near future to administer the hookworm treatment.

Miss Sue Hammock, head of the physical education department at Teachers College, made a short talk offering her help to teachers of the various schools of the county in directing the physical education of any particular group.

Miss Dorothy Potts, head of the child welfare council of Bulloch and Emanuel counties, gave an interesting report on her work in this county.

Before the meeting adjourned the Denmark P.T.A. invited the large group to the lunch room, where a bountiful lunch was served.

The next meeting will be held at Esia School in April or May.

in later and arranged to pay for necessary repair.

Two blocks further away there was a rather helpless looking car lying upon its side in a ditch near the railroad track, having lain there undisturbed since its casualty the day before when "something went wrong with the steering gear." It lay in a good deep ditch, and the car looked like it was innocent of any wrong intentions.

A block further down the railroad track there were signs left from the night before when a car attempting to cross the railroad tracks had "lost control" of itself and had turned down the track for a hundred yards before the driver was able to shut off the power and climb out as the car came to a stop.

Further up the street near the gasoline tanks there was a mound which looked like a mishap. A small scrap of wire gauze which resembled what had been a radiator grill; springs manifestly from an automobile seat; something resembling a large snuff box, which might have once passed for a car battery; a large tin container resembling an abandoned wash tub (could it ever have been the body of an automobile); small scraps of rubber tire—manifestly a wreck we suspected, and you suspect; but we are both mistaken—it was only a trash pile raked up from the back yard of the negro shanty, but like all intents and purposes identical with some of the other wrecks which we have recounted above.

Which brings us to theorize—you can't always be sure that the pile of junk you are looking at was ever a car, or merely an aggregation of waste from the back yard.

But what we started to say, and have forgotten to say, is that when all the used cars have gone through the rubbish heap—and they are slowly and surely headed that way—there is going to be a live, brisk market for some of these lovely new models which are now to be seen in the local show rooms. Go around and make your selection before they are all gone.

now being taken to complete the cancellation of the terms of that power of attorney.

Since the beginning of the sensational case, the public has been kept more or less generally informed upon the various proceedings. Albert Cobb was for several days held in Bulloch county jail; was later transferred to Augusta, then to Savannah, and then back to Augusta. One other accused was held in Screven county and another in Effingham county. Numerous attempts by the defense to compel the prosecution to disclose its evidence has so far been successfully resisted by the prosecution.

In the meantime Albert Cobb, prominent as a three-times candidate for congress from the First district, has spent much of his spare time with a pen. Many articles were early contributed to the newspapers, and more recently a book of 175 pages has been issued in which he seeks to make a refutation of the charges against him. The book is notably replete, it is said, with vitriolic terms applied to Judge William Woodrum, of the Ogeechee circuit superior court; against R. Lee Moore, employed by members of the Daughtry family to prosecute the case; against a Savannah detective agency, and perhaps against others who have come under Cobb's displeasure during the slow development of the case. This book, issued two weeks ago, has not yet been dismissed from the case, it being understood that Judge Woodrum is planning to take steps charging Cobb with contempt of court because of the contents of the book.

A chapter which was soon closed was written by friends of Cobb in the Georgia legislature a little more than a week ago when a resolution was introduced which sought impeachment of Judge Woodrum for his alleged irregular handling of the case. That resolution of impeachment was defeated by a three-to-one vote on the first roll call.

NOW IS BEST TIME TO START PASTURE

Group Orders For Seed Will Be Accepted By County Agent Till February 15.

Recommending that farmers who are planning to establish new permanent pastures during the spring, get this work started right away, County Agent Byron Dyer this week offered suggestions on how much work may be done.

He said that if the soil is to be plowed before planting the grass or legume it should be plowed early. When plowing is done early, the seed-bed will settle and become firm again before planting time.

Now is the time to clear away the timber and undergrowth on the area to be put into pasture, the agent suggested. He pointed out that when plowing is done on this land it is best to leave the organic matter on top of the ground. At this season it is not advisable to do much plowing of any kind where seed are to be planted this spring.

One of the most important things in getting the pasture started right is to plant good seed, Mr. Dyer advised. He said that poor seed have caused many pasture failures. This can be prevented by planting seed of high germination and free of objectionable weed seed.

Group orders for seed are now being made and bids on the seed will be accepted on February 15.

Strength During MIDDLE LIFE

Strength is extra-important for women going through the change of life. Then the body needs the very best nourishment to fortify it against the changes that are taking place.

In such cases, Cardui is proved helpful to many women. It increases the appetite and aids digestion, favoring more complete transformation of food into living tissue, resulting in improved nutrition and building up and strengthening of the whole system.

Living-at-home was very much in evidence at Pete Newsome's home a few days ago when the weather was cold. Pete had several large hogs hanging up that most farmers would have been carrying to market.

Doris Cason finds that a little concrete and a few brings will add materially to the appearance of a house if properly built into a set of door steps and walk.

Henry Williams thinks that a man never gets too old to start an orchard. He is sure that some of the trees will be here longer than he will, but declares that it is only fair for him to provide some fruit for others to enjoy.

FARM COLUMN

By BYRON DYER, County Agent.

Presence of Blue Mold Reported In Bulloch

Blue mold has been reported to the county agent's office by several farmers in the Sinkhole district.

Bulloch county farmers are urged to be prepared to combat the disease with the known remedy. Red copper oxide, lathane spreader and cotton seed oil will cost about $3 per hundred yards for the season. These materials are available at most of the drug stores and many of the stores in the communities over the county. Detailed method for mixing and applying the materials have been demonstrated in most communities. However, farmers who did not attend one of the meetings or who want a printed form giving the information may procure a copy from the county agent's office.

The newspapers have carried the information in detail, which information is identical with that in the farm agent's office.

Ivanhoe Clubsters

Pool Seed Orders

Ivanhoe community club members grouped their orders for peas, velvet beans and pasture grasses at the February meeting Friday.

Before going into a business session the various members transplanted around the club house grounds the many different kinds of native shrubs which they brought from home. Work done in landscaping the grounds last year is showing up, but not sufficient to give the desired effect.

Following a discussion on the farm outlook for 1938 and the proposed farm legislation a dinner was served which was prepared on the outdoor stove.

FARMERS GET BUSY

Evidently the ideal farm weather during January in Bulloch county was a challenge to the farmers that there was work to do. The air was a-quiver with singing and the plowman's call was ringing to his team from early dawn to twilight.

The swelling shoulders of the mules were pressing in the

OUTSTANDING CITIZEN

In every community there are persons who stand above others in their importance as citizens—who are more worth while to many of the interests with which they are associated. A community is blessed who has such leaders.

It is a delicate matter to point out to one man who means more to the one than to a community, and sometimes the worthwhileness of a man is not recognized until his record is complete and full understanding of his worth is measurable.

In the light of the recent sudden going away of S. W. Lewis, we believe it can be universally agreed that no man occupied a more important relationship to the community, and sustained that relationship with greater merit, than did he.

For twenty-five years he was a citizen, coming here a comparatively young man, and himself growing up as he helped the community to grow. As a citizen he was popular and beloved, having attained through an outstanding position in financial circles, he came easily to be recognized as a safe leader, his judgment respected, his counsel sought and his aid always a willingness to share with others the responsibilities and reward for successful achievements.

As a chairman he was loyal, liberal, constant and discreet.

Today, in the dark hours following his sudden going, many eyes are wet with tears and many hearts are bowed with sorrow—many have lost a personal friend.

WHY BUSINESS FAILS

A successful merchant of Statesboro told this writer a few days ago that his credit sales last year approximated $17,000, and that his books at the present moment show slightly less than $140 uncollected. You would call that good collection, wouldn't you? Less than one per cent of his charge accounts found to be uncollectible. He told us, further, that not all of these collections were made without some tedious attention on the part of his collector—which was himself. He said he was compelled to speak candidly and pleadingly with some of his friends whom he had credited, but that he was convinced that he had retained friends by requiring payment of bills by those to whom he had extended credit.

Now, what occasions this comment is the fact that in today's paper there is published a table showing that Bulloch county—which is a business institution doing a vast credit business—last year collected only slightly more than one-half of the amount carried on its books as due and payable by the stockholders of the county—its citizens.

All the great agitation about tax system having "broken down," and you hear that among the reformers almost on every side, means chiefly that the collection system has fallen down. The merchant didn't succeed in making his 99 per cent collections merely by placing the charge accounts on his books and waiting for the "spirit to move" those to whom he had sold goods—he went after the amounts due in a business-like way, and saved his business from possible great losses.

To point out some remedy for the system of tax collection—business men need not have pointed out ways of improvement about collecting accounts which are due and unpaid. To begin with, there needs to be a centralizing of authority, and then an increase of responsibility and incentive to collect.

Incidentally, we are inclined to believe that the recent change in the status of our taxing authority in Bulloch county—the creation of a tax commission instead of receiver and collector as at present—promises some betterment of the situation for the future.

GOVERNOR SHARES NATION'S BIG CAKE

Independent Grocers' Alliance Sponsors Baking of Cake Weighing Over Ton.

An Eastern Air Lines plane Monday took off from Chicago to deliver to Governor E. D. RIVERS at Atlanta, Georgia's portion of the "all-American" cake—largest cake in the world.

The cake was sent from the baking products marketing conference of the Independent Grocers' Alliance of America, held in Hotel Knickerbocker, Chicago.

Weighing more than a ton, the huge cake was baked state by state and fashioned in the shape of the United States map. Each of the 48 governors are receiving their state cake through special plane delivery.

A counterpart of the "all-American" cake was delivered to President Roosevelt in time for his birthday. The recipe from which the cake was baked was chosen as the favorite of 1,500,000 housewives who made their preference in 6,000 I. G. A. stores throughout the country. The "all-American" cake is a white cake with chocolate fudge icing.

Purpose of the conference, which was attended by nationally-known authorities, was to study the American housewife's baking choices and to plan a nation-wide, two-weeks' sale of home baking supplies and ready-baked products to begin March 4th.

The meeting was one of a series called by J. Frank Grimes, president of Independent Grocers' Alliance, similar to the recent canned foods marketing conference which resulted in a record-breaking distribution of canned foods to dispose of bumper crops.

Colored Farmers Raise Beef Cattle

John Greene, a farmer in the Willow Hill community, says that there is much profit to be recognized in growing beef cattle for market. He intends to purchase a purebred Hereford bull for use on his farm and use her in that community. Green is one of the evening class school in vocational agriculture which is located at the community school, Willow Hill.

Last year, E. L. Cone, another farmer in the same community, bought eight head of Hereford cattle at $20 per head. A few months later he sold them for $480. Being a shrewd operator, he realized a profit of $120. These cattle were fed corn, hay, velvet beans and meal.

M. M. Martin and Trainees I. W. Lawton and R. W. Campbell, instructors of the evening class school, think that this kind of growing beef cattle for market is a good one and they are asking each farmer interested to come out to the evening classes each Tuesday night.

Aid Georgia Farmers By Eating More Meat

Atlanta, Feb. 8 (AP).—By eating more meat Georgians can increase the state's income from livestock sales to local packing plants, which last year amounted to twenty-five million dollars, according to Columbus Roberts, Georgia commissioner of agriculture.

Joining in the campaign of the Institute of American Meat Packers, Commissioner Roberts pointed out that Georgia has become one of the leading meat-producing states of the south.

Georgia has more meat packing plants than any other southern state, and in recent years Georgia farmers have turned to live stock in their diversification program, he said.

"The entire meat trade of Georgia has launched an intensive campaign to arouse consumer interest in meat," Commissioner Roberts said. "This campaign is a part of a national mobilization of effort undertaken to create greater interest in meat."

FEBRUARY MEETING OF CHILD WELFARE COUNCIL

Mrs. Ruby Coutu, psychologist for the state child welfare service, made a talk to the child health and welfare council which met Tuesday evening, February 11, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter McDougald with Miss Sarah Hall as joint hostess.

Mrs. Coutu told how intelligence tests might be a guide in understanding children who, because of low mentality, made a poor adjustment in school and because of bad behavior are thought to be mean children.

For these children she suggested special classes which offer handwork and other activities which would stimulate the child's mind to its fullest capacity, but not expect him to compete with the bright child.

Mrs. Coutu will hold clinics in the child welfare demonstration centers over the entire state, and plans to return to this county in about three weeks.

Present at the meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hodges, Mrs. J. D. Fletcher, Miss Jane Franchette, Miss Elsie Bailey, Miss Eunice Lester, Mrs. H. L. Sneed, Miss Dorothy Potts, Miss Sarah Hall, Mrs. Marvin Pittman, Dean and Mrs. Z. S. Henderson, Miss Katherine Rowe, Mr. and Mrs. Walter McDougald, Kermit Carr, Louis Ellis, and Mrs. Ruby Coutu.

POLITICAL WAR IN FIRST DISTRICT?

Atlanta Commentator Discusses Interesting Possibilities in Political Circles.

(Capitol News Service)

The first congressional district presents one of the most intriguing plots for the 1938 playlet in Georgia's political theatre. No district in the state contains for the moment so many key politicians, and they are engaged now in some preliminary skirmishes that, if translated to the movie screen, would be termed a "box office wow."

The political situation revolves around two personalities: John B. Spivey, the president of the Georgia state senate, and Hugh Peterson, congressman from the First district. Incidental figures in the cast of characters include: James L. Gillis, member of the state highway board of Georgia and political and economic leader of Treutlen county; Richard Brevard Russell Jr., United States senator from Georgia and brother-in-law of Congressman Peterson; Eugene Talmadge, former governor of Georgia and still a political factor; Mrs. Eugene Talmadge, who was first wed to a brother of Congressman Peterson; Governor Ulrich Dickinson Rivers, who will need John Spivey badly in the next senate if he runs for governor again and is not defeated.

John Spivey is extremely popular in the senate and among state politicians in general. His political word is as acceptable as a gilt-edged bond. Although he is a "country boy" and obviously proud of it, he is one of the most astute diplomats in state politics. He has demonstrated his tact at this session of the assembly by keeping the senate, always the ultimate key to the success or failure of an administration's legislative program, in much better discipline and political regularity than has Speaker Roy Harris across the corridor.

Mr. Spivey would like to return to the state senate next time. But under the rotation system of selecting state senators, it is Treutlen county to name the senator. Treutlen county is the home of James L. Gillis, member of the state highway board of Georgia.

Now, if Mr. Spivey can not return to the state senate, where he would be one of two veterans returning and would likely be president again, he contemplates seeking the congressional seat held by Hugh Peterson.

Just as Treutlen county is the Gillis county, Montgomery county is the county of the Petersons. Just as Jim Gillis is chairman of the county commissioners of Treutlen, a Peterson is superior court clerk of Montgomery. The late N. L. Gillis, father of the highway board member, was the "big man" of Treutlen county; Jim Peterson, father of the congressman, was the "big man" of Montgomery county.

It is through the Peterson family that the Talmadge and Russell factions attain a vague kind of merger. The elder Peterson was reputed to have been one of the financial backers of Mr. Talmadge's first race for commissioner of agriculture, and his son received Talmadge's support in his congressional race and subsequently distributed much of his federal patronage to loyal Talmadge agents.

Mr. Gillis, who has not always agreed with Mr. Peterson—especially in this distribution of federal patronage to supporters of Mr. Talmadge—delivered Treutlen county to Governor Rivers in 1936 and went on the state highway board.

Up to him is the final decision. He must choose between two parallel beams of light which are directed across the roadway onto a photo-electric cell. When an automobile or truck cuts across the light ray a record is made on a time chart similar to an adding-machine tape, and as many as 400 interpretations of the rays per minute may be registered. The instrument is so designed that pedestrians, bicycles and motorcycles are not counted.

The highway survey, which is being conducted in co-operation with the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, is covering all ramifications of highway building, cost, traffic conditions, types of surfaces required, and financial problems. Surveys are under way in 46 states, with about 80 per cent of the cost being borne by the federal government.

Japan is now threatening a 1,000-mile drive into the interior of China. The Japs should remember that the trip home is just as long, and the roads aren't any too good.

TOBACCO QUOTA WILL BE SET SOON

Bulloch County Farmers To Be Notified Soon As Allotments Are Made.

Flue-cured tobacco acreage allotments for farms under the 1938 agricultural conservation program will be determined at an early date, County Agent Byron Dyer said this week.

The national, state, and county acreage goals under the 1938 program will be broken down into farm allotments. The farm allotments will be determined in view of the size of the national crop needed to keep the supply of flue-cured tobacco in line with the demand.

"As soon as the individual farm allotments are determined by local and county committees and approved by the state office, farmers will be notified of their allotments for 1938," the agent said.

"If pending legislation is enacted, it is likely that the 1938 poundage allotment, or marketing quota, for a farm under such legislation will be the normal yield per acre for the farm times the number of acres in the farm's acreage allotment under the 1938 agricultural conservation program."

"Operators of farms for which a tobacco base was not previously established under AAA programs should report at once to their committee the following information:

"Tobacco acreage and production on the farm in 1935, 1936, and 1937, if any."

"The intended acreage of tobacco for the farm in 1938, if tobacco was not grown on the farm in 1935, 1936, or 1937."

COLORADO FARMERS' CONFERENCE A SUCCESS

The Bulloch county farmers' conference for negroes was held Friday, February 4th, in the auditorium of the Statesboro High Industrial School, where more than 200 farmers and farm families were represented.

The core of the meeting was reached early in the conference when Z. T. Hubert, A-H club agent, and E. M. Thomas, county agent of Laurens county, discussed "A Balanced Farm Program." Both speakers discussed the need and effect of such a program in Bulloch county. Dr. H. VanBuren followed with a very interesting talk on "Healthful Living in Rural Communities."

County Agent Byron Dyer imparted much helpful information to the farmers in regard to the soil conservation program. He also discussed what this program means to the farmers in helping them to restore plant food to the soil. Alva Taber, supervisor of vocational education for negroes in Georgia, discussed in connection with this what it means to a farmer to have a vocational agriculture teacher in his school or community.

Suppt. C. E. Wollet concluded the program in pointing out in a very brief and picturesque manner the need and importance of diversified farming in Georgia. He gave statistical data in reference to the product imported to Georgia that could be grown on the farm, thereby encouraging all farmers to put into practice the live-at-home program.
